

UNCERTAIN.

Result of the County in Doubt.

Gains and Losses at Unexpected Points.

Republican Representation in the Legislature.

The Count Completed so Late that Returns from Outlying Districts were Not Obtainable.

The campaign is closed, but reports from all sources are so meager that the result of the county election is uncertain. It had been supposed that great delay would be occasioned by the counting of the ballots, but this delay was found to be only half measured.

It was impossible to obtain returns from many of the outlying precincts and indeed this had not been expected, but arrangements had been made to receive returns from those precincts connected by telephone or those lying nearest to the city.

Several of these were not heard from, indicating that the count was completed so late that the district committees evidently judged that messengers were unable to reach the city last night.

Reports taken at intervals from the four city precincts were favorable to the territorial and county tickets, and continued so until the count was completed, showing that all had been accomplished in the city by the territorial candidates that had been expected of them.

The first complete report was received from Johnston precinct, a Democratic precinct, and was particularly encouraging.
